Neue Germanistik: The Graduate Journal of German Studies is the title of a new, semi-annual journal written, edited, and produced by graduate students in the field. It is intended to publish material reflecting the current trends in graduate programs of Germanistik. The forthcoming first issue will focus on "Post WW II German Literature" and include general contributions on German language, literature, and culture as well. The editors invite the submission of primary materials -- documents, photographs, letters that might otherwise be inaccessible or of particular interest to a wide readership. Manuscripts should conform to MLA guidelines, not exceed twenty typewritten pages (double-spaced), and be submitted in triplicate. Neue Germanistik is available by subscription. All correspondence should be addressed to: Neue Germanistik, Lynn Scott and Shawn Jarvis eds., Department of German, University of Minnesota, 9 Pleasant Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455.

Emery E. George, who is editing a volume entitled East European Poetry: An Anthology (Ardis Publishers, 1981), invites submissions of translations of the work of GDR poets who were prominent in the 1960's and 1970's. Exiled as well as domestic writers may be included. Photocopies of the original poems should be submitted with the translations, accompanied by exact bibliographic citations (including copyright data) as well as by stamped, self-addressed return packaging. Prospective contributors are asked to secure their own permissions and pay their own fees; team translating is discouraged. Submit to Emery E. George, 1485 Maywood, Ann Arbor, MI 48103, by September 1, 1980.
